

It's 2014!

Time for New Year's Resolutions!

resolution (n.): a sincere promise to oneself

On January 1 — the first day of the new year — some people make New Year's resolutions.

1. Resolutions are promises to change one or more of your behaviors or habits.
2. Sometimes these changes help people reach goals.
3. Resolutions may be simple or complex.
4. Resolutions can be made for yourself alone or you may include your family, too.
5. These promises should have a positive outcome or instill a positive behavior.

Tigers, can you think of three ways you can make the second semester of school better than the first? What will you do differently in 2014 to help you reach your academic goals? Take time to jot down a few ideas here.

Student Resolutions

Parents, academic success is a team effort, and YOU play a very important role in education. What new behavior or activity do you plan to adopt to support your child's learning? How can you help improve their math and reading skills?

Parent Resolutions

As you look at your new resolutions, consider how GSD can assist you in meeting these goals. If you have any questions, concerns or need advice on how to achieve these goals, please feel free to contact your child's teacher(s) or the school's Parent Involvement Coordinator. All teacher contact information can be found in your Family Handbook or on the GSD website.
